Welcome, Visitor!

We are so pleased to have you as our guest today. If you are a first-time visitor with us, please fill out a ‘visitor card’ that you will find on the back of the pew. You may put it in the collection plate or give it to one of the men at the auditorium doors as you exit.

There are free tracts and literature on the wall in the foyer. We also have Bible correspondence courses you can sign up to receive by mail at no cost to you. Let us know if you would like to set up an in-home Bible study.

Thank you for attending. We hope to see you often!

Heroes

Heroes come in many forms, and they often emerge when the world needs them most. While society tends to elevate superheroes or historical figures as iconic examples of heroism, true heroes are often found in everyday lives, displaying remarkable acts of courage, selflessness, and perseverance in ordinary circumstances. A hero is someone who steps up in the face of adversity, choosing to act with integrity, love, and compassion, even when it comes at great personal cost. They may not always wear capes or make headlines, but their impact is felt deeply by those they touch.

From the Christian perspective, heroes are those who live out the teachings of Jesus, serving others with a spirit of humility and sacrifice. Jesus Himself is the ultimate hero, laying down His life for all humanity. His sacrificial love sets the ultimate standard for what it means to be a hero: to give of oneself for the well-being of others. The Bible also points to many heroes of faith who, despite their flaws and imperfections, exemplified extraordinary courage. Figures like Moses, Esther, David, and the Apostle Paul all faced significant challenges, yet their willingness to trust God and act faithfully made them heroes of the faith.

The essence of heroism often lies not in great battles or dramatic victories, but in the quiet, consistent acts of service and compassion that go unnoticed by the world. Heroes are those who choose to make a difference in their communities, whether by standing up for the oppressed, caring for the sick, providing for the needy, or simply offering a word of encouragement when it's needed most. These acts of kindness often ripple outward, impacting lives in ways that can't always be measured.

Moreover, heroes inspire others to rise to their own potential. When someone steps out in faith or courage, it encourages others to do the same. The power of a hero's example lies in its ability to awaken something deep inside others, a desire to make the world better, to stand up for what is right, and to be a source of hope in times of darkness. It is this contagious spirit of heroism that, over time, has the potential to change entire communities.

Ultimately, heroes are those who make the world a little brighter through their actions and choices. They remind us that true greatness isn't about power, fame, or wealth, but about humility, service, and love. Whether seen or unseen, they reflect the character of Christ and call us all to live lives that matter, to be faithful in small things, and to be brave enough to make a difference, no matter the cost. In a world that often seems filled with darkness, heroes shine brightly, pointing others toward hope, grace, and the transformative power of love.

"Greater love has no one than this, than to lay down one's life for his friends." John 15:13

God Bless
-Todd
